There is an Engineering Education group at TAMU that many of you may find useful.

Resources include material to send to students about online etiquette and online interactions. Attached here.

They meet regularly and discuss a variety of topics. For example, they recently shared tips on how to minimize cheating online. View here. Slides attached. (This is a stand-alone example. For more, see access instructions below.)

To join the group and access more, visit the TAMU Google page, click on “Log in to Google Groups” and search for “TAMU Engineering Education Faculty Group” using the search bar. Once you join, you’ll have access to the posts and resources, as well as this shared folder on drive.
